Volunteering Advisor

Volunteering has altered dramatically over the past 18 months and we recognise that the type of volunteering opportunities and experiences have changed too, as well as the way people want to volunteer.

In order to support both our members and potential volunteers, we are increasing our team to include this important role. This position will require a flexible approach to volunteering, the ability to listen and respond to the needs of our members, creative engagement with a range of stakeholders and an ability to identify gaps and find solutions.

If you have experience in recruiting, supporting and developing volunteering within the local community, this role could be for you.
